These Abolitionists had better not bate rebels so much; it is unnatural. New England is the very hot-bed of bloody notions toward rebels. The history of these Puritans is but a history of rebellion. They rebelled against the old church and set up another, re belled against it, and by rebellion overthrew the Government that supported it. Their fathers came to this country and rebelled against the mother Government, and threw off its power. They had hardly set up another Government until they labored to rebel against it; and only failed because the Government would not make an opportunity for them. For many years they plotted and caucused to divide the Union, and have never been satisfied with its Government since the beginning of this century. They have been almost uniformly getting up partial rebellions, trying to nullify United States laws by State enactments, resisting laws by mob violence. They openly aided armed resistance to the United States authority in Kansas. In their press, and in the speeches of their Congressmen, they have threatened resistance to law. The whole history of the Yankee race is a history of rebellions. They ought to have a fellow-feeling for rebels. In fact, they have ly no more States in the territory which uniformly applauded rebels against other Governments, and only hate this because it is graded to a subject condition, to be allotted a rebellion against their creed and notions. In their whole history rebellions have been right, and it is only wrong now because it is not on their side. Its object doesn't suit, They hate slavery; but their fathers made it. They brought the negroes here, and made their fortunes by the trade. There would have been but few negroes here but for Yankee enterprise in the slave trade. Jefferson wanted to denounce King George for encouraging the slave trade; but New England party, we give his own language. He says of lofty soul, and aspires to the glory of making wouldn't agree, because, said Jefferson, whilst they wanted no slaves themselves, they made a profit by carrying for those who did.

been misled by their restless and turbulent They had no better reason to rebel in 1814 than the fire eaters had in 1861. We don't like these rebellions ourselves. They are abominable, with no better reasons than anybody ever had in this Union as it was; but the Yankees have been dissatisfied with it for a long time; and even now, in putting down a rebellion they are in rebellion themselves. They are trying to make a new Government to super-

We say again these fellows ought not to hate rebels. Indeed, they don't know how long it will be until they are at their old trade again -rebellion. They can't live without rebellion against something. They have not rebellions enough now to suit them. There are strong symptoms of one part of them rebelling against the other next year. Next year, who knows who the people of the United States will elect President? Pe haps it may be Seymour, or worse, Vallandigham. Then these blood and hunder patriots will want to rebel, Perhaps we shall have to whip them in, as we have to do the South; and they can't hate rebels so much. They had better get out of the habit of hating rebels in time. We shall not then turn the tables on them, and say-no compromise with traitors. We shall not supersede the Constitution to whip them, or sacrifice the guarantees of personal liberty, We can forgive even rebels, although we don't like the class at all. We shall still be for a compromise even with rebels. These New England folks should be the last to hate rebels. They should recollect the example they have set the world. They can't live without rebellions, and ought to feel sympathy with those afflicted with their chronic hereditary in-

The delegation from Missouri to Wash ington, to order the President what to do in behalf of the radicals, betook themselves to New York city to agitate, bully and threaten. They abused Lincoln, threatened that he soon should comply with their demands, if he did not now; promised to rebel themselves if such a man as Vallandigham should be elected President, and otherwise exposed themselves to the contempt of all men of sense. These radicals are of the Jim Lane and Jennison stripe, and are the pioneers of the Abolition or Republican party. They don't differ from the rest except in their means to the end. They have the same object in view as the rest of their party; but they are impatient of all indirect means, and propose to go straight to the end, pulling all obstacles out of the way by force. Their wishes are law, Constitution and all, and against all else they are rebels, They consider it very unreasonable that any body should dare to differ with them. Indeed, it is a crime that they ought to have a however, we came across the following extract right to punish in a summary manner; and they don't stop at Southern rebels. The President is in the way, and they will dispose of him. He is too slow. They are indignant Blair says; at the Blairs, who have lately made speeches denouncing Abolitionists. The precise difference between them and the Blairs is not more than that between tweedle-dum and tweedledee; but the Blairs assume a difference, and hat is enough. They charge that the Blairs are making overtures to the Copperheads, when the Blairs are for the President's proclamation, for confiscation bills and all other machinery of terror and repression that the party have invented. All they advocate is to keep up appearances a little more, and affect to talk about Constitutions, laws, &c., and against radicals and Jacobins. However, we like this fight as it stands, for it can't stand long this way. The radicals must get worse and the Blairs better. The latter must come for the National Government to have exclusive back to the old party; in no other way can jurisdiction? they fight these radicals.

These raids into Kentucky seem to us to show an absolute necessity for a State force. armed and drilled, and ready to be moved to any point in the State, under a competent leader. We have seen that the Federal troops can't be confined to this one duty, and that our State cannot be protected by them from these flying bodies, which will destroy more than it would take to pay troops to prevent their depredations. Some of the Legislature undertook to provide for such a force, but were defeated by the bugaboo that it would bring the State and Federal Governments in conflict.

The Missouri committee who waited on President Lincoln warned him that he should know that they were his friends. We

The great Republican party is evidently disintegrating. That immense mass, drawn together by the cohesion of public plunder, is already displaying elements of discord in every direction. Van Wyck, Dawes and other ome time since declared there was more nent than from the rebels in arms; but this regarded as betokening anything towards breaking up the party. It was a family affair, date their subscription will expire ten days in ad- got up among the children of Abraham, and was not supposed to indicate anything alarm ing. As the Presidential election draws near, however, a greater ferment than usual is aroused in that select circle. Snugly housed as they are, once in four years the tempest of popular opinion breaks through the sheltering roof, plunges through the shaking doors and drenches in at the windows. They look out upon the waste of waters, and new thoughts and dreams of ambition haunt their fervid minds as they fancy their ability to command the great ship of state. Each one of the happy family sends out his little dove to seek if there may not be the particular resting place for him. There is no harmony among them. They look with eyes askance at one another, and plot for each other's downfall. It has resulted in dividing the Cabinet in half, upon two distinct propositions-the twigs their separate messengers have brought them.

We mentioned some days since an article in the Atlantic Monthly, theorizing that the Southern States, by their rebellion, had committed suicide, and were reduced to Provinces or a territorial condition, to be ruled by the supreme will of Congress. This represents the opinions of the ultra radicals, who boldly avow their principles, and propose to enter the Presidential contest with them nailed to English note, declines to concede anything. the mast-head. It is no longer no more slave This leaves to the triple powers that interfered States; no longer no more slavery, but frankhas rebelled. They are disfranchised, deout in suitable proportions, to be ruled by whatsoever proconsul may be appointed at Washington. Sumner leads these, with Halleck or Staunton as their particular choice for the Presidential honors.

The opposite party of this disunited family is lead by Mr. Lincoln, backed by Blair and Seward. As the first of the two last named has recently, in a speech in Maryland, endeavored to define the position of his wing of the the Sumner doctrine:

The assumption that certain States of the South are extinct—annihilated by the rebellion—and that a Congress composed of Representatives from the States in which the rebellion does not exist has the right to consider the sister republics where the insurrection for the moment prevails as dead bodies, to be dis posed of as they please when they get posses-sion, is abhorrent to every principle on which the Union was founded. No member of the Union, nor the government of the whole, can act upon any of the States but in the mode prescribed by the Constitution. They are all bound to guarantee to each a republican form of government, and that is a government adopted by the peole; for it is the essence of republican government that it shall emanate from the people of the State. The Federal Government derives its power from the same source, and it is on the people and through the people that it must act as a nationality, and not upon the States, blotting them out of existence by a supposition, while their constitutions, laws archives, property, all survive, and a loyal people to give them activity the moment that constraint is thrown off. The Abolition proments and State rights they have ceased to exis; that a loyal people, in whom they still survive and have being, and to whom the United States stands pledged to guarantee them forever, must also have perished, and that a Congress of the other States may step in and take absolute authority over the whole region, as vacated States' territory, and legis-late for it—founding these new assumptions late for it—founding these new assumptions upon fictions as absurd as those on which rebellion founds itself. This is pretty strong language from brother of a brother; but there are few conservatives who will not heartily agree with Mr. Blair. He has properly stigmatized the assumption of Sumner and his co-workers. Reading it, one must see that here is a de cidedly explosive material in the Abolition camp, with the fuse already lighted. One can but ask, with such facts presented, will the cohesive power of office bind these alien parts together, or will they not burst into fragments when the struggle comes on? It would be about as absurd as to expect oil and water to mix. We ought to look for a counter blast from the other side, pitching with fire and flame into Mr. Blair's obsolete ideas of the Constitution. That gentleman, how ever, not satisfied with this, closes in what may be termed a declaration of war. He says:

The issues are thus made up between the President and the rebels and their foreign sym-pathizers, who would revolutionize our Government to create a separate Government in the South, on the one hand, and on the othe hand between the President and the ultra Ab clitionists, who would disfranchise the South ern section of our country. It is not im probable that the latter, though aiming at different result, will be found co-operating in the end with conspirators of the South and their foreign allies. They may prefer parting their foreign allies. They may prefer parting with the South to partnership and equality under the Constitution. When we read these extracts and the ger eral tenor of the speech, we found ourselves almost convinced that Mr. Blair was in reality opposed to these Abolitionists, of whom he speaks so harshly. Had he not placed the ultra Abolitionists on an equality with the rebels themselves, and hinted that they merited the same punishment? What more could we ask? Ultra Abolitionists-that is, those who propose to free all the slaves in the Southwere great criminals, if the act was done by the Federal Government. Just at this time. in Mr. Blair's address, which led us rather to hesitate-to doubt if in this noisy contest

Thus slavery in the Territories is unconstitu tional; but if the rebel territory falls under the exclusive jurisdiction of the national gov-ernment, then slavery will be impossible there. In a legal and constitutional sense it will die at once. The air will be too pure for a slave. I cannot doubt but that this great a slave. I cannot doubt but that this great triumph has been already won. The moment that the States fell, slavery fell also, so that without any proclamation of the President slavery had ceased to have a legal or constitution existence in every rebel State.

Is not this all that Sumner's article in the Atlantic Monthly says; "Thus slavery in the Territories is unconstitutional, but if the rebel territory falls under the exclusive jurisdiction of the National Government, then slavery will be impossible," Must not the State government be abrogated just as Sumner says,

We are forced to conclude that there is no real difference whatever between these two noisy contestants; that the only object is the Presidency, and they only kick up a hullabaloo to attract attention to themselves and hid EUGENIE AND STRIPED STOCKINGS .- The Paris correspondent of the Liverpool Courier says that the Empress possesses the immortal glory of having invented, or at least revived, "crinoline petticoats," Such a brilliant act would have fully satisfied the ambition of an ordinary woman. But her Majesty has a another revolution in female costume. For 30 or 40 years past, and for aught I know more, French ladies have been faithful to the white stocking, and they have set their faces against the attempt of English ladies to introduce the red one. The Empress thinking that the eternal white had become too monotonous-the red was too glaring, and the blue too literaryasked herself if some other color could not be adopted. She thought long and anxiously, and at last the inspiration came-the stocking might be striped! The day after this mental illumination the Imperial ankles, and some space above them, came forth adorned with stockings of blue and white stripes; and all the courtiers proclaimed the union of the two colors ravishing to behold. By this time next year, no doubt, the new fashion will be as prevalent as that of crinolines.

DEATH OF A POLISH EXILE.—On Friday last an inquest was held by Coroner Ramsey on the body of George Groske, a Polish exile, who died with apoplexy while in an eating sa-loon in Leonard street. At the time of his death he was dressed very poorly, and was supposed to be a pauper. The proprietor of the saloon stated that deceased had eaten at his place for three years past, but he knew nothing further about him, and did not ever know his name. Further investigation devel oped the fact that the deceased had occupied a garret room in White street. A search of the premises was made, and a trunk was discovered which, on being opened, revealed the name of the deceased among a mass of papers and Sav-ings' Bank books. In one of the books was a bank of Commerce and in the others certificate for $378 56 in the Bank of Commerce and in the others certificates ranging in amount from $500 to $800. Fifty certificates of stock in the Bank of Commerce, of $100 each, were also found among his papers. Other personal property of considerable value was also discovered. The deceased had re sided in this country about seven years, and at the time of his death was about sixty years of age. Notwithstanding his ample means, it was his custom to go around in a state of apparently the most abject poverty. No one seemed to know whether he had any business, or how he spent his time. The evidence tended to show that he had no relatives in this country. His effects have been placed in the hands of the public administrator.

REVELATIONS OF A REBEL MAIL-BAG. Among the captures by our troops at Cumberland Gap was a large rebel mail-bag, the contents of which have afforded both amuse ment and instruction to those who have examined them. Among other things, the letters confirmed beyond all question the fact that the Georgia troops are as dissatisfied as any in the Confederate service. Out of the large number of Georgia letters in the mail, but two display ed any confidence whatever in the rebel cause. One gentleman wrote home for his wife not to sell his two pigs for Confederate money, as it was entirely worthless. Another says: "If this war ain't closed soon, there will be no men left. We can't fight a world-ful of men; the South can't stand it much longer-our men are all deserting." Another is more explicit: "I have never seen men so out of heart. You had better set your house in order, for by Christmas we shall be back in the Union. Ir peace don't come soon, we will all desert." This is the spirit displayed in all or nearly all these letters—a spirit of utter despair for the rebel cause, and a will-days to send Longstreet's corps from Richingness to take the Union on any terms, so it brings peace.

agriculture, it is said, is almost wholly neg lected, owing to the great exodus of negroes many of whom, far away from their old homes and masters-hanging on the skir's of the army, or lounging about the purlieus of Washington and other cities-are suffering for the commonest necessaries of life. A son of Professor Pierce, of Harvard College, was had up and fined, with costs, by the sitting magistrate of the Cambridge Police Court, the other day, for an assault upon a mechanic named French. The offense appeared to be that Mr. French did not give a lady, who was in company with Mr. Pierce, the inside of the walk in passing. The court suggested to Pierce an apology and compromise but Pierce said he had done nothing but what was proper, and also stated that if he had known it was a mechanic and not a student he would have let him pass.

Railroads and our Armies.

America is essentially a country of rail-roads, and it has been our pride that no nation can show as perfect a system of communications between its various sections as our own.

It has moreover been our custom to view these railroads in a commercial and social point of view. But the present war has developed

An army is carried by steam from one point to another with a celerity which would be perfectly astonishing to the oracles of war fitty years ago, were they alive to witness it.

Our troops make forced marches in swift rushing cars at the rate of one hundred and fifty miles a day. Re-enforcements are car-ried to threatened positions without the fatigue or delay of marching, and that position which is insecure to-day is rendered, by the aid of the locomotive, impregnable on the morrow. Especially has the vital importance of such means of transportation been made evident by the prompt relief which it has re-cently afforded to General Rosecrans. After the battle of Chickamauga General Rosecrans required re-enforcements and immediately. The enemy were in strong force. Unless troops could be sent to Rosecrans more rapid ly than by the usual marches he might suffer ruinous defeat. The authorities at Washing-ton received intelligence of his necessities by telegraph, and sent the troops by railroad. Steam and electricity were our swift and cer of the Cumberland the intervening distance was a thousand miles; yet the telegraph anni-hilated the distance in a day, and the locomo tive in—well, let us say a week. Railroad trains carried the re-enforcements, with all their arms, accounterments, and baggage, from Washington to Chattanooga so rapidly that in a very brief time the veterans of the East stood side by side with the tried warriors of the distant Southwest, and Rosecrans' position was made impregnable.

Such is but a single illustration of the advan teges which we derive, in prosecuting the war, from our numerous and well appointed railroads. The facility and speed with whice we can thus transport our troops counterbal ances to a great degree the advantage which the rebels have always enjoyed in moving up-on "interior lines." The South, to be sure, has railroads, but they are fast wearing out, and have already become so dilapidated that trains are not allowed to run upon them at a faster rate than ten miles per hour. Therefore, in the transportation of troope they are unable to surpass us in celerity of movement, which, after all, is the benefit of interior lines. No better illustration of this fact can be given than their recent re-en-forcement of Bragg's army. From Richmond to Chattanooga is about five hundred miles. But, owing to our possession of the Tennes-see and Virginia Railroad, the rebel treops were obliged to make a detour, which added somewhat to the distance. Longstreet's corps started from Culpepper, per railroad, for Bragg's army on the 7th of September, and mond to Chattanooga, while, on the contrary Rosecrans' re-enforcements were sent to him

This gentleman is now within the lines of the Army of the Potomac. His residence is near Brandy station. At one place where he was yesterday, in pursuit of postage stamps (the regular three-cent U. let him have some."

Hereupon a Sergeant of artillery, who had just received a goodly lot of the article, spoke up and said: "Here, Mr. Botts, please take half of mine. I understand that you are a Union man. You are the only one I have seen in Virginia; take the stamps." Mr. Botts received the article, thanked the soldier for the courtesy, but insisted on paying the proper price for them, which the Sergeant was very reluctant to receive.

It will be remembered that Mr. Botts has been long confined in prison at Richmond for his devotion to the Union. He is now inder parole to the rebel Government to communicate information to our commanders. He looks care—worn, and proba manders. He looks care-worn, and probably his long confinement and the troublous times which are upon his State have impaired his fortune and means of life. His household, as is the case with all in the neighborhood where he lives, have doubtless found difficulty in procuring food, in the constant presence, now for two years, of large armies. It was a graceful and thoughtful act, therefore, that the commissary of our forces sent to Mr. Botts' house, some days since, a goodly supply from the abundant stores of the Union army now encamped on the Rapidan, A Union-loving people will commend this attention to one gallantly and to the death in favor of the "old flag."

A few days since we published a paragraph concerning the arrest of a young man in this city, who it was supposed had been conscript-id in Hartford, Conn., and had made this his city of refuge. To-day we are enabled to lay before our readers some circumstances in connection with the case which develop the astounding fact that a citizen of Newark was decoyed, put in irons and violently torn away from his friends, without an opportunity be-ing afforded him of proving his personal identity or innocence of the charge made against him by Administration spies. On Tuesday of last week a young man named Robert Welch, who has for some years past been employed at Cummings' fruit stand, on the Canal Bridge, Broad street, was beckoned to by a man outside the store, who asked him f he was willing to earn a dollar or twelve shillings, by the removal of a piano from a neighboring street. Welch consented, and accompanied the man across Broad into Park street, where he was told he must accompany his captor to New York, on the charge of be-ing a deserter. To this demand Welch emphatically dissented, declaring that he had never enlisted or been drafted into the military service. His declarations and struggles for liberty were deciarations and struggles for liberty were alike unavailing. The kidnapper succeeded in forcing him into a railroad car at Center-street depot, placed handcuffs upon him, and took him through direct to Hartford, Conn., where he was locked up with three or four substitute deserters in the Provost Marshal's office in that city, and kept in irons for seve-ral dark without any investigation being ral days, without any investigation being made into his case. After submitting to this indignity for nearly a week, he was fortunate enough to meet a friend who interested himself in his behalf. It was then discovered that self in his behalf. It was then discovered that the name of the deserter, whom the pimps of the Provost Marshal thought they had captur-ed, was Wm. Walsh, belonging to one of the Connecticut regiments in the field. This discovery did not lead to Welch's discharge rom the suspicion resting upon him.

It was hinted that he would be sent to Ver-

It was hinted that he would be sent to Vermont, but in the meantime he was allowed his liberty for a few hours. In this interval he agreed to go with the army as a substitute, thinking that would be the better way to extricate himself from the meshes of the net in which he was entangled. The medical examiner, however, refused to pass him, and as a few structle for his liberty he engaged him. final struggle for his liberty, he engaged him-self on a vessel bound for New York, and worked his passage home, arriving in this worked his passage home, arriving in this city yesterday.

Welch is a native of New Jersey, was never in the army, and has no idea who the man was that decoyed him away in so deceitful a manner. During his absence his father and employer felt the greatest anxiety concerning him, the transaction having been conducted with such dissimulation and secreey that none of his friends had the slightest knowledge of the occurrence or the whereabouts of young Welch.

This is one of the practical workings of the This is one of the practical workings of the conscription act and the suspension of the habeas corpus. No citizen is now secure in his personal rights, but at the will of a Provest Marshal or one of his spies may be arrested, imprisoned or exiled, and it matters not how unjust the charge, none are permitted to interfere is his behalf.—[Newark Daily Journal.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. By the latest private advices from the South, t appears that Bragg's army has been re-en-orced since the battle of Chicamauga by the following troops: One division from Rich-mond, commanded by Gen, Arnold Elsey; one from Western Virginia, commanded by Gen. Sam Jones; one from Petersburg and Welden, commanded by Gen. Ransom; three brigades from Florida, commanded by Gen. Howell Cobb, and three famous batteries from Lee's army, viz: Cutt's, Blodgett's and Walton's. onsisting of D. H. It is often supposed that great results can be produced in a single term of twelve or fifteen weeks. Both teacher and committee aim at this rapid mode of manu-facture. True education is that which aims at the slow and healthy growth of the mind; the incorporation into it of principles, and the formation of tastes and habits the full value of which will appear only after ma-ture years have developed their tenden-cies. The highest and best parts of education are incapable of exhibition. The show made at the close of a term is well enough to amuse children and their fond parents, but is often like that of newly-dressed pleasure grounds, adorned with trees and shrubs fresh than the process. from the nursery, having a show of vitality in the foliage, though as yet drawing no sap from the root. Such frostwork of the school-room is soon dissolved, and generally passes away with the occasion. All attempts at such premature results of education are entirely useless; and yet our system of employing teachers by the term renders it almost necessary for a teacher who is ambitious of distinction to lay his plans for that kind of superficial coulture, and machinal drill which can be culture and mechanical drill which can be produced in a few weeks and shows off as evidence of marvelous skill.

OFFICE OF THE QUARTERMASTER GENERAL, FOR THE STATE OF KENTUCKY FRANKFORT, KY., Sept. 19, 1863. It is hereby ordered that all citizens who have received arms, either from the State or General Government, will report the same, by letter, to this office immediately. Captains and other officers of "State Guards" and "Home Guards" will report, without delay, the number of arms received from every source, the disposition made of the same, and in whose hands said arms now are. This order includes the arms known as "Lin coln guns." A strict compliance of this or-der will obviate the necessity of sending an officer into every house, where arms are known to have been carried. The Rebel Raid in Missouri, [Correspondence of the Associated Press] NEW ORLEANS, September 30. NEW ORLEANS, September 30.

The headquarters of the Nineteenth Army Corps, under Gen. Frankli n, and part of the Thirteenth Army Corps, under General C. C. Washburn, are at Camp Bisland, fifty miles from Brashear City. They have met no enemy as yet. Foraging parties have gathered up large quantities of mules, horses and cattle, but the plantations are generally deserted. The advance of the army was delayed on account of obstructions in Bayou Teche. These obstructions were blown up, and the bayou is now open for steamers to New Oberia.

We clip the following, in regard to the upper streams, from the St. Louis Democrat:

It appears to be a very generally entertained be lief among boatmen that the rivers will qecome no lower—that the Missouri, Illinois and Upper Missisppi, all down to low water ebb, are about to swell, and that in a few days there will be no less than five feet in any of these streams. If this heartily desired consummation shall only be verified, the hearts of many will be made glad thereby. The present and late low water has had a blighting effect on commerce. The rivers are low. Boats cannot carry full cargoes in shallow water; therefore, when the rivers come up, each boat will accomplish much more business. The conclusion thereupon is, that when the river is up, the present tunnage on the Western rivers will be amply sufficient for river commerce.

SIMPLICITY AND ECONOMY COMBINED

FOR BURNING

PATENTED MARCH 24, 1863.

THIS IS AN ARTICLE WHICH, ON ACCOUNT OF ITS UTILITY, SIM plicity and economy, has been very properly termed "the best thing of the kind ever invented," by the application of which to any common finid lamp, you can burn Kerosene or Coal Oil, without smoke or smell, white more light is obtained from a given quantity of foil to an with any other burner. With one of these burners applied to any fluid lamp it may be moved rapidly about, or even carried out of doors, without the light being extinguished.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT. A VALUABLE INVENTION.—One of the best, and at the same time, most simple contrivances for burning Kerosene Oil in . common fluid lamp. It is so simple that any child can apply it, an it will burn Kerosene Oil in any fluid lamp without even changing the wicking. It is one of the neatest things that has come under our notice, and is destined to become very popular with a I who use it. It burns the Oil perfectly, with no smoke, and will save many times its cost in a few months, and for portable or night lamps it appears to be the no plus uttra.—(Syracuse Courier and Union.

From the Scientific American.]

It accomplishes the object very perfectly, and dispenses with the annoyance and expense of the inconvenent chimney. A free and steady light, without smoke, is obtained, when a good q-ality of oil is used. The laveation co. sits in apply ng the metalic burner, to the tube of the Lamp; the burner is simely slipped over this, and cas be easily adjusted to any fluid lamp; thus equipped, coal oil can be burned in it as readily as fluid. The burner should be allowed to proved above the top of the tube a distance equal to the diameter of it, or about 3-160 an inch; and the wings, composing the attachment, must be separated, so as to allow the division to be just equal to the size of the tube. These lamps are very convenient for household purposes, as they on be carried in the hand in draughts or currents of air without ceing extinguished.

"It is an adm rable invention, and effects the purpose in the simplest possible manner. These burners are coming into universal use."—[Rochester Daily Union. From the Scientific American.] "It is a very simple contrivance, and entirely effectual, and has a rapid and extensive sale."—[Express.

Other journals speak in like terms, and the most flattering testimonials are being constantly received from agents and the most instering constantly received from agents and others as to their efficiency and economy; in fact they have earned for themselves a wide spread reputation.

The article never fails to commend itself to all who see it in operation.
